CITY OF QINGDAO

Qingdao is a dynamic coastal metropolis in Shandong Province, situated approximately 600 kilometers south of Beijing. Recognized as "Sailing City" of China, it harmoniously blends maritime heritage with contemporary innovation. The cityscape features striking German-colonial architecture alongside modern skyscrapers, while its deepwater port ranks are the busiest all over the world. Qingdao serves as a hub for marine science and hosts the Asian Sailing Federation, complemented by natural treasures like the Taoist Laoshan Mountain and golden-sand beaches along its 800km coastline. This unique fusion of historical charm, economic vitality, and seaside splendor makes Qingdao a distinctive destination in northern China.
